MESSAGE FROM THE CONFERENCE CHAIR

Welcome to the 2024 Health Equity and Social Justice Conference. I am delighted to work with my colleagues in DePaul's Master of Public Health Program and Center for Community Health Equity to bring together researchers, practitioners, and students to discuss building trust to advance health equity.

We look forward to beginning today's conference with a poster session that features both research-focused initiatives and social action efforts to advance health equity. During today's conference, we will also share ideas on building trust to advance health equity in small group breakout discussions followed by a conference-wide consensus building discussion.

Despite important initiatives to promote the public's health and well-being, we see substantial health inequities in Chicago and nationally. A discourse on building trust to advance health equity is as important as ever.

Thank you for attending the 2024 Health Equity and Social Justice Conference and for the important perspective you bring to today's conference.

Dan Schober, PhD, MPH
Health Equity and Social Justice Conference Chair

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The 14th Annual Health Equity and Social Justice Conference could not have occurred without the sponsors, planning committee, panelists, poster presenters and community partners, breakout group facilitators, and volunteers.

Special thanks to Dan Schober for serving as Chair of the planning committee and his numerous efforts to organize this event. Thank you to the other members of the planning committee, Maureen Benjamins, Suzanne Carlberg-Racich, Kristine Daniels, Maria Ferrera, Taylor Harris, Nicolette Listenbee, Raj C. Shah, and Gus Turner, for their contributions toward the success of the conference.

Thank you to the volunteers—Hassan Ahmed, Ellen DeWilde, Hannah Johnson, Nicolette Listenbee, and Mary Palin—whose support ensured the conference ran smoothly. Thank you to Maureen Benjamins, Maria Ferrera, Elissa Foster, Taylor Harris, Nicolette Listenbee, Nitya Mani, John Mazzeo, Jessica Polos, and Rah C. Shah for being breakout group facilitators. Thank you to Chicago Scholar Chantal Rodriguez, who served as the intern for the Center for Community Health Equity during the summer of 2024, for compiling the list of articles featured in the program that focus on health equity and community engaged research. Thank you to Alonso Vidal and Colin Lucero-Dixon, the filmmakers documenting this conference.

An immense thank you to Dean Stephanie Dance-Barnes and Sr. Associate Dean Richard F. Niedziela in the Office of the Dean, and Sarah Connolly, the Chair of the Department of Health Sciences, within the College of Science and Health at DePaul University for providing McGowan South as space for the conference.

Finally, thank you to everyone who attended this year's conference. Your engagement and participation brought the event to life. We hope you leave feeling inspired, empowered, and ready to facilitate health and well-being across Chicago.

MEET THE PANELISTS

Melissa Maguire, LSW Executive Director, The Illinois Association of Free & Charitable Clinics

Melissa is grateful to be the Executive Director of the Illinois Association of Free and Charitable Clinics (IAFCC) , working to strengthen the Illinois safety net to maximize the collective impact of free and charitable clinics by representing and resourcing them to ensure equitable, accessible and quality health care for all.

As a social worker for 40 years she has also worked in organizations serving those that are experiencing addiction and homelessness. She loves to garden and travel with her husband.

MEET THE PANELISTS

Fatema Mirza, MPA Executive Director, Be Well Clinic

Results-oriented executive with a strong focus on community and population health, possessing extensive expertise in business models, strategic planning, project management, and grant administration. Skilled in program design, community needs assessment, risk analysis, team building, and volunteer workforce development. Career achievements include providing expert consultations on community engagement strategies for Health Equity and Patient-Centered Outcomes Research, establishing impactful community health programs serving immigrant communities in Chicago, leading Affordable Care Act enrollments, setting up & managing home health agencies, coordinating healthcare IT projects in hospital settings and experimental research in a basic sciences environment. She currently serves on several non-profit boards and is a cofounder of non-profit, Worry Free Community.

MEET THE PANELISTS

Kamari Thompson Director of Programs, Mobile Care Chicago

Kamari Thompson is currently the Director of Programs at Mobile Care Chicago. As a native Chicagoan and growing up on Chicago's South Side, Kamari has always had a strong community connection. It was that connection along with her environment that sparked her interest in the health field. Ms. Thompson has been a lifelong champion for health equity and has served as an advocate for Asthma and Allergy patients for over a decade. Prior to her work in asthma Kamari worked as a Clinical Health Education Specialist. Her work has always been centered on the needs of the community, particularly minority, low income and underserved communities. In such a role she has worn many hats, though the needs of the community may shift with each generation her goal remains the same: to empower people of all age's races and economic backgrounds to take a proactive role in their health.

MEET THE PANELISTS

Stephanie D. Willding, MPA CEO, CommunityHealth

Steph Willding is the Chief Executive Officer of CommunityHealth, the nation's largest volunteer-based, free health center that provides critical health care access to uninsured patients. Steph has committed her career to rebuilding health care systems to increase access to care, deepen service availability, and improve health outcomes. Steph is currently the Chair of the Board of Directors for the Illinois Association of Free and Charitable Clinics. She is also proud to serve as a Board Member for Planned Parenthood of Illinois Action and as an Executive Advisory Board Member for the UIC School of Public Health. She holds a Master of Public Administration from the University of Illinois at Chicago. In 2022, Steph was named Crain's Business Chicago Top 40 Under 40. She is a member of the Leadership Greater Chicago Class of 2025. Outside of her work in health justice, Steph's passions include urban container gardening, Formula 1 racing, and running marathons.
